TUESDAY EVENING, Oct. 22, 1967.

CONFISCATION of trust made goods when they enter into interstate commune under a section of the Sherman anti-trust law, is the new feature of an attack up a filegal combinations inaugurated yes erday by the Department of Justice. A large consignment of cigarettes manufacted by the tobacco trust, and offered for shipment at Norfolk, was seized at the instance of the attorney general Ly the collector of customs at Norfolk, as stated in yesterday's Gazette. The trust, to claim its property, must go into court and prove that it is not operating in restraint of trade or violating the anti-trust law. This move upon the part of the Department of Justice is probably the most important and farreathing section that has yet been taken against the trusts. The immediate purpose of the Attorney General is to test the law, but in the event of ruling by the courts in favor of the government the trusts are left absolutely at the mercy of the government, and all their manufactures or other property, the moment it enters into interstate commerce, may be selved and confiscated. As much as has been written and said about the Sherman anti-trust law, it has never before been realized that the statute confers any such power upon the government. It remained for Attorney General Bonsparte and his assistants to discover what an enormous power had been given the government. In the Department of Justice there is not the alightest doubt that the section of the law invoked will be upheld by the courts. The courts have decided that all combinations in restraint of trade are illegal, and that all conspiracies entered into for the purpose of affecting trade are also illegal. They have also decided that the control of interstate commerce rests absolutely with the federal government, and, therefore, that und r such control the government may determine what class of goods shall be admitted to interstate commerce and what] class excluded. So, in the opinion of the attorney general and his assistants, the government may seiz) under the corfiscation clause of the Sherman law, all property entering into interstate commerce in violation of the law. If the courts take this same view of the propesition the effect must be immediately of the most far-reaching consequence. Se'zare of goods belonging to a combination which is merely suspected of violating the law will be possible, and the burden of proof will be thrown upon the owners of the goods. Heretofore the government has been required to prove, first the existence of a trust, and then some violation of law. Under compel the dissolution of all the trusts by a hair's breadth. in the United State, not as the result of court orders, but as the result of a notification from the government that they cannot continue to do business. The law applies to every combination subiect to prosecution for restraint or the creation of monopoly. The coal trust operating in Pennsylvania can be prevented from sending its cosl out of the State.

THE annual report of Commissioner of Pensions Warner, just issued, shows that there has been a decrease of 18,-600 members from the pension rolls at the end of the fi cal year 1907. According to Mr. Warner this is the largts decrease ever registered by the bureau. At the same time, however, the amount of pensions was greater by $4,613,131. It seems that the amount of money paid to pensioners is never to be lessened even though the pensioners

From Washington.

(Correspondence of the Alexandria Gazette.) Washington, Oct. 22 Is the Federal government about to enter upon a general policy of seizing the products of "bad trust" High officials of the Department of Justice r gard the invoking of and hitherto un-used section of the anti-trust law in the legal warfare against the Tobacco Trost, of the deepest significance. They intimate that it may foreshadow simil r action against the Standard Oil, fertilizer, powder, and authacite coal trusts, suits for the dissolution of which are pos pending. They point that if the law permits the seizure and condemnsti n of the one trusts good in interstate and foreign commerce, there is obviously nothing to prevent the sezure of the preducts of other trusts.

'The action taken at Norfolk yester-terday, in the seizure of tobacco consigned to the British-American Tobacco Company of London, is unquestionably "As we see it bowever, the law vides the weapon, and we would be characterize the government's action as "high handed." They say the section "high handed." They say the section of the law just invoked for the first time, is only aimed to give the federal suthorities final power to stop an illegel cerporation doing business, after it has been so declared by the courts, in crss of a refusal to obey the court's order. These lawyers declare that the law makers never intended to give forcement, without due process of law.

It is probable that the case will get into the Supreme Court on this constitutional question. It is understood from a high source that the Norfolk seizurer was made for the particular purpose of notitying "bad trusts," that the government losing patience over legal delays, and that if this policy were persisted in, wholesale sale seizures by the govern-ment, would follow. "We are sincerely desirious of knowing just what the autitrest and Interstate Commerce law mean," said another law efficer of the government today. "The subterfuges, evasions, and legal quibbles of the trusts are becoming very annoying. The Bank Troubles.

New York, Oct. 22 -The house cleaning now going on in New York banks is regarded in the financial district as being considerably over due. At the time of the insurance exposures it was predicted the banks would be next, but they escaped to make way for the Standard Oil and traction revelations.

The bank exposures have proceeded with a sensational rapidity. It took months to get McCall and McCurdy out of the insurance companies, but in four days the presidents of four national banks and the president of one trust company have been summarily bounced, with a long list of directors. The trouble originated from the same

It is the custom of Wall street banks to loan money on marketable securities up to 80 per cent, of their value. If the market value of the securities fall the bank demands more security. But stocks Anna farm on the Rappahannock river rarely fall more than five points at a time, so the banks are able to keep their loans safe.

This gave the Clearing House, now known in Wall street as the cleaning house, its opportunity. It had these operators absolutely at its mercy and refused to put up a cent until they got out of the banking business entirely.

It general the entire trouble is regarded as an acute case of undigested securiies, but this time it is the "inside" banks that have the indigestion and not the other banks or the public in general. Hebrew Men and Women Mutilated.
